

Unusual error messages, but computer still seems to work

Suspect a virus if you haven't recently installed any new software. Nowadays most likely to come from e-mail attachments - if you have current anti-virus software, use it, otherwise switch off and phone us!

If you have just installed some software, try removing it (use Windows Control Panel, Add/Remove Programs).

If the Computer says it's running Scan disk every time you start it up

It could mean it has not been closed down correctly. Correct sequence is to click on "Start" then "Shut Down", then wait until it switches itself off or says it's safe to turn power off.

If this does not solve the problem contact Nectar as it could be a problem with the hard disk.
